Profile

Before settling on Front End Web Development for my career, I explored other possible avenues, including Graphic Art, Game Development, Computer Animation, and a little bit of Interactive Design. I love to learn new things and to be challenged in a way that causes me to grow not just as a developer, but as a person, too.

Experience

FRONT-END WEB DEVELOPER, ARMCHAIR MEDIA; ATLANTA, GA – 2014-PRESENT

My job as a front-end web developer has been enriching and challenging in all of the right ways. Working with a variety of clients, such as Coca-Cola and Georgia Pacific, I've gained some experience with the CMS known as Kirby, gotten practice with implementing new JavaScript/jQuery plugins, I've learned a lot about cross-browser support, and I've gotten all kinds of wonderful experience working with SCSS, which has been a large part of what I do. I've also had hands-on experience of collaborating with designers, as well as other developers from other parts of the world, whether by way of Slack or phone conferences.

WEB DEVELOPMENT INTERN, ARMCHAIR MEDIA; ATLANTA, GA – 4 WEEKS

As an intern at Armchair Media, my tasks consisted of inserting content into clients' website, creating webpages according to provided design comps, collaborating with most of the staff almost daily, and occasionally writing JavaScript functions for various webpages.

SUMMER GRAPHIC ART INTERN, WALGREENS CORPORATE; DEERFIELD, IL – 7/2011 - 9/2011

While interning at Walgreens Corporate, my duties included editing existing and upcoming ads in InDesign, assisting in designing posters and ads, developing campaign design strategies, and also helped create ideas for a logo for their new SPARK initiative.

VIA INTERN, DEPAUL UNIVERSITY; CHICAGO, IL – 12/2009 - 6/2011

As a graphic design intern for Vincentians In Action, I designed posters, logos, created visual representations of certain conferences, designed Save-the-Date cards that were distributed at the White House. I used Adobe Photoshop, Illustrator, & InDesign for most of these tasks. I also filmed various conferences for online publication.
